Complex pattern formation in reaction-diffusion systems with spatially varying parameters Karen M. Pagea, Philip K. Mainib, Nicholas A.M. Monk,1 a Bioinformatics Unit, Department of Computer Science, University College London, Gower Street, London WC1E 6BT, UK

Complex pattern formation in reaction-diffusion systems

The evaporation of droplets of different suspensions often leads to the formation of complex patterns, like for instance patterns containing ring structures [4, 7, 19], rhythmic patterns [7 ...

complex patterns can be generated by hierarchical superimposition of several pattern forming systems. The formation of a regular periodic arrangement of different cell types or the generation of polygonal patterns will be discussed. The models of that section are original and so far unpublished. Appendix 7 contains a complete discussion of the lin-

Biological Pattern Formation: from Basic Mechanisms to

In developmental biology, pattern formation refers to the generation of complex organizations of cell fates in space and time. Pattern formation is controlled by genes. The role of genes in pattern formation is an aspect of morphogenesis, the creation of diverse anatomies from similar genes, now being explored in the science of evolutionary developmental biology or evo-devo.
